PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Plaintiff's remand motion (ECF No. 2647) does not and cannot show that remand is appropriate here, because this Court plainly has and should retain jurisdiction over this action. Two of Plaintiff's causes of action are asserted "under" a federal statute – the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act – and Plaintiff's Amended Complaint essentially mirrors the operative class complaint in the MDL, asserting claims that are identical to economic loss state law claims already before this Court. Having created federal jurisdiction, Plaintiff now wishes to remove it by offering to strike all "references" to the federal law. But it is too late, jurisdiction is measured at the time of removal and after-the-fact efforts to strip the Court of that jurisdiction fail.

Plaintiff's desire to return to state court is borne of the fact that he is hoping to have his case – with claims that mirror the claims here – tried in advance of any trial in this Court. Plaintiff ignores that this Court can – and should – exercise its supplemental jurisdiction over this Action. This Court will consider the same evidence and hear from the same witnesses, and is well familiar with the complex legal and factual issues that arise in this matter. Moreover, retaining jurisdiction over this case will insure that this Court's carefully crafted trial schedule will not be undermined by a potentially competing trial in state court. Consequently, concerns of economy, convenience, fairness, and comity are best served if this Court retains this Action to be decided with the other economic loss actions.

Plaintiff's motion to remand, therefore, should be denied.

BACKGROUND

Commencement of the Action. On June 14, 2010, Plaintiff Michael Houlf commenced a civil action in the Superior Court of the State of California, County of Placer, by filing a complaint against Defendant Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. ("TMS"). (Notice of Removal filed in Houlf v. Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 1, ("Notice of Removal") Ex. A.) The case was added to Judicial Council Coordination Proceeding ("JCCP") No. 4621 for unintended

1 acceleration cases on October 5, 2010. (Id., Ex. B.) As originally pled, the case was 2 a simple lemon law action, with virtually no overlap with the economic loss claims 3 pending before this Court.

4 Houlf was later given leave to amend and filed his first amended complaint on 5 January 5, 2012. (Id. at Exs. C-D.) The first amended complaint includes claims 6 that Houlf has suffered damages under the federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act 7 (“MMWA”). Specifically, Houlf alleges that “[a]s a result of Toyota’s breach of 8 express warranty under California Commercial Code § 2104 and the Magnuson-9 Moss Act, Chapter 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2301, et seq., Mr. Houlf [allegedly] has been 10 damaged in the amount of the cost of repairs or replacement, and other damages in 11 an amount to be proven at the time of trial” and also that “[a]s a result of Toyota’s 12 breach of its implied warranty of merchantability under Commercial Code § 2103
13 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2308, et seq. and California Civil Code 14 § 1790, Mr. Houlf [allegedly] has suffered damages including but not limited to 15 repair and replacement costs, and other damages in an amount to be determined at 16 trial.” (See Houlf’s First Amended Complaint (“FAC”), Notice of Removal Ex. D ¶¶ 17 135, 140.)

18 When Houlf amended his complaint on January 5, 2012, he added new claims 19 that transformed his case from a comparatively simple warranty/lemon law action to 20 the kind of broadly conceived economic loss case with which this Court is already 21 intimately familiar from the MDL’s putative class action asserting claims for 22 economic loss (the “Economic Loss Action”). (See FAC passim.) In particular, 23 Houlf added counts under (1) Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. (the “Unfair
24 Competition Law” or “UCL”), (2) Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1750 et seq. (the “Consumer 25 Legal Remedies Act” or “CLRA”), and (purportedly) both (3) express and (4)

1 implied warranty claims under California’s version of the Uniform Commercial 2 Code (“UCC”).¹ (Id. ¶¶ 105-140.)

3 Each of these claims in Houlf is also asserted in the Second Amended 4 Economic Loss Master Consolidated Complaint (“SAELMCC”) and now the Third 5 Amended Economic Loss Master Consolidated Complaint (“TAELMCC”) in the 6 Economic Loss Action. (See SAELMCC, ECF No. 580, ¶¶ 417-454, 464-489 and 7 TAELMCC, ECF No. 2654, ¶¶ 444-465, 466-481.) As Houlf alleges no personal 8 injury or wrongful death, his case asserts purely economic loss based on alleged 9 sudden unintended acceleration (“SUA”). (See FAC ¶ 5 (“Mr. Houlf now owns a 10 vehicle with [an allegedly] demonstrated and dangerous propensity for SUA. As a 11 result of Toyota’s conduct, Mr. Houlf has lost money or property.”))

12 Simply put, one year after the filing of the SAELMCC in the Economic Loss 13 Action, Houlf amended his run-of-the-mill lemon law individual action to echo 14 nearly every one of the SAELMCC’s California claims, raising identical issues of 15 fact and law. (Compare FAC ¶¶ 92-140 with SAELMCC ¶¶ 417-54, 464-89, 502-16, 16 684-709 (asserting claims under CLRA, UCL, express and implied warranties under 17 the California UCC, Magnuson-Moss Act, and Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty 18 Act).) Indeed, Plaintiff acknowledged as much to this Court already, when he 19 expressly conceded the legal and factual overlap. (Plaintiff’s Notice of Related 20 Cases, filed in Houlf v. Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 5.)

21 Removal of the Action. Houlf’s FAC also added Toyota Motor North 22 America, Inc. (“TMA”) as a defendant for the first time; TMA was first served on 23 April 9, 2012. (Id. at Exs. C & D.) The Action was removed to this Court on May 9, 24 2012 and transferred at Plaintiff’s request as “related to” the MDL case 25 8:10ML2151-JVS-FMO on May 31, 2012. (Order dated May 31, 2012 in Houlf v.

26
27 ¹ As addressed below, Plaintiff purports to base his fourth and fifth causes of action 28 on provisions of state law that do not create a cause of action, and his claims are thus brought solely under federal law. (See Section I.C.1, infra.)

1 Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 8; see also Plaintiff's
2 Notice of Related Cases, Houlf v. Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO,
3 ECF No. 5.)

4 The State Court's Deference to this Court on the Issue of Remand. On 5 May 31, 2012 Judge Mohr held a telephonic conference with counsel for the Toyota 6 defendants, plaintiffs' counsel for bellwether cases Uno, Houlf, Al Jamal, and 7 Dushane, as well as representatives of the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee, 8 Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Class Counsel, and the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee to address 9 the implications of the addition of a new party in the Uno case, slated as the first 10 bellwether, on the bellwether schedule. (Nolan Decl. ¶¶ 2-4; Ex. A.)²

11 During the call, Judge Mohr expressed no discomfiture with the removal of 12 the Houlf case to this Court, focusing instead on the possibility that the trial date for 13 the Uno case might have to move to the Spring of 2013, if necessary, to allow the 14 new defendant in Uno to prepare for trial. (Id. ¶ 5.) When the discussion turned to 15 whether any case pending before Judge Mohr would be trial ready before the Spring 16 of 2013, all of the plaintiffs' counsel – save that of Mr. Houlf – remarked that they 17 anticipated not being trial ready before that time and that it made more sense to have 18 the first federal trial be heard before the state trials began. (Id.)

19 Everyone save counsel for Mr. Houlf thus agreed that the most workable 20 solution to the additional party being added to the Uno case and other matters was to 21 keep the JCCP bellwether order intact (with Uno in the first position), but move the 22 Uno trial date until after the Van Alfen trial occurs in the MDL. (Id. ¶¶ 4-6.) Thus, 23 there is a substantial likelihood that, regardless of the posture of Houlf, the Uno
24 action will remain the lead bellwether case, with a trial date of Spring 2013. (Id. ¶ 5.)

25

27 ² All internal citations, quotation marks, and original alterations are omitted and 28 emphasis is added unless otherwise noted. All references to "Nolan Decl." herein are to the Declaration of Thomas J. Nolan ISO Opposition to Ex Parte Application filed June 5, 2012. (ECF No. 2657-1.)

1 Counsel for Mr. Houlf was the sole voice of dissent, maintaining that his case 2 should replace Uno as the first bellwether action, and suggesting to Judge Mohr that 3 he contact this Court about the proper posture for Houlf going forward. (Id. ¶ 6.) 4 Judge Mohr indicated he had no intention of doing so and made clear that he 5 expressed no view on the merits of the remand motion and would express no views 6 as that issue was the sole province of the federal courts. (Id.) Plaintiff's counsel 7 then proposed that he would seek to resolve whether Houlf would be remanded to 8 state court prior to a previously scheduled June 11, 2012 status conference – Judge 9 Mohr certainly did not “order” resolution by that date. (Id. ¶ 7.) Indeed, as noted 10 above, Judge Mohr expressed no concern or view on the timing of the remand 11 motion and rebuffed requests by Houlf's counsel to speak to this Court about the 12 remand motion or express any substantive views on the remand motion. (Id. ¶¶ 5-6.)

13 Furthermore, Plaintiff's contention that Judge Mohr “expressed concern that 14 with this action (the second bellwether) currently removed, new bellwether cases 15 would need to be selected” (ECF No. 2647 at 7) is wholly misleading. Judge Mohr 16 asked the parties to confirm their selections for the fourth and fifth bellwethers so 17 that the state court could be prepared in the event that this case was not remanded.
18 (Nolan Decl. ¶ 8.) The first bellwethers are already in order; they are: (1) Uno, (2) 19 Al Jamal, and (3) Dushane. (Id.) If Houlf were remanded, it presumably would 20 return to the number two slot, after Uno. (Id.)

21 Plaintiff's misrepresentations aside, there is no reason for this Court to give up 22 jurisdiction and remand this case back to state court in order to allow Plaintiff to try 23 to leapfrog ahead of the Economic Loss Action – particularly when no one in the 24 JCCP action thinks such a move makes sense (except for Houlf).

25 ARGUMENT

26 I. This Court Has and Should Retain Jurisdiction over Houlf's Claims

27 Despite having nearly a month to write it, Plaintiff's motion to remand 28 contains only three and a half pages of argument, consisting primarily of conclusory

1 and self-serving characterizations of his claims, sprinkled with misrepresentations of 2 the proceedings before Judge Mohr, and a handful of inapposite authority. None of 3 this facile treatment challenges the obvious: that two of Plaintiff's claims are brought 4 under federal law, and as a result this Court has jurisdiction over his action.

5 A. The Houlf Action was Timely Removed

6 As a preliminary matter, Plaintiff criticizes TMA for the timing of the removal 7 of this Action, suggesting that "it was not until Judge Mohr compelled Toyota to 8 produce critical witnesses and documents . . . that Toyota removed this case[.]" 9 (ECF No. 2647 at 4-5.) Plaintiff's aspersions are belied by the facts and the law.

10 First, the law provides that a party has thirty days from service to remove an 11 action to federal court. See 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b); Destfino v. Reiswig, 630 F.3d 15 12 952, 956 (9th Cir. 2011) ("each defendant is entitled to thirty days to exercise his 13 removal rights after being served"). As Plaintiff grudgingly admits, despite first 14 bringing suit in June 2010, Plaintiff didn't serve TMA with the summons and first 15 amended complaint until April 9, 2012, and, after obtaining the consent of its co-16 defendant TMS, TMA filed its notice of removal on May 9, 2012, within thirty days 17 after being served. (See generally Notice of Removal; ECF No. 2647 at 5-6.) Thus, 18 the timing of removal is in compliance with the law and not suspect because TMA 19 can hardly be criticized for waiting until it was served to remove an action.

20 Second, as Plaintiff well knows yet neglects to mention, virtually all the 21 information he is seeking in discovery has already been produced in this MDL action 22 – a factor strongly mitigating against remand.

23 Third, the documents of Toyota employee Grady Bonds to which Plaintiff 24 refers (the only documents not already produced) will be provided as required by 25 Judge Mohr's orders – orders that are not implicated by removal of the Houlf case 26 since the information will be produced to all state court plaintiffs. Thus, contrary to 27 Plaintiff's suggestion, the timely removal of this action was not affected by – and did 28

1 not affect – the status of the discovery process before Judge Mohr and imposes no 2 prejudice on Plaintiff’s ability to obtain relevant discovery.

3 B. Federal Question Jurisdiction is Measured at the Time of Removal

4 A federal district court has removal jurisdiction over any civil action brought 5 in a state court for which the district court would have had original federal question 6 jurisdiction. 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). Federal courts have original federal question 7 jurisdiction over actions “arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the 8 United States.” 28 U.S.C. § 1331. An action “arises under” federal law within the 9 meaning of § 1331 if federal law creates the cause of action and/or grants federal 10 jurisdiction to hear the case. See Mims v. Arrow Fin. Svcs., LLC, 132 S. Ct. 740, 11 748 (2012) (“[T]here is no serious debate that a federally created claim for relief is 12 generally a sufficient condition for federal-question jurisdiction”) (citing Grable & 13 Sons Metal Products, Inc. v. Darue Engineering & Mfg., 545 U.S. 308, 317 (2005)); 14 City of Chi. v. Int’l Coll. of Surgeons, 522 U.S. 156, 164 (1997) (“By raising several 15 claims that arise under federal law, ICS subjected itself to the possibility that the City 16 would remove the case to the federal courts”) (cited by Plaintiff, ECF No. 2647 at 17 10); California ex rel. Lockyer v. Dynegy, Inc., 375 F.3d 831, 838-39 (9th Cir. 2004).

18 “Challenges to removal jurisdiction require an inquiry into the circumstances 19 at the time the notice of removal is filed.” Spencer v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for N. Dist. of 20 Cal., 393 F.3d 867, 871 (9th Cir. 2004). “When removal is proper at that time, 21 subsequent events, at least those that do not destroy original subject-matter 22 jurisdiction, do not require remand.” Id.; see also United Steel, Paper & Forestry, 23 Rubber, Mfg., Energy, Allied Indus. & Serv. Workers Int’l Union v. Shell Oil Co., 24 602 F.3d 1087, 1091-92 (9th Cir. 2010) (“the usual and long-standing” rule is that 25 “post-filing developments do not defeat jurisdiction if jurisdiction was properly 26 invoked as of the time of filing”); Strotek Corp. v. Air Transp. Ass’n of Am., 300 27 F.3d 1129, 1131-32 (9th Cir. 2002) (“[W]e start with the core principle of federal 28 removal jurisdiction on the basis of diversity-namely, that it is determined (and must

1 exist) as of the time the complaint is filed and removal is effected.... Once 2 jurisdiction attaches, a party cannot thereafter, by its own change of citizenship, 3 destroy diversity.”); Sparta Surgical Corp. v. Nat’l Ass’n of Secs. Dealers, Inc., 159 4 F.3d 1209, 1213 (9th Cir. 1998) (“[J]urisdiction must be analyzed on the basis of the 5 pleadings filed at the time of removal without reference to subsequent 6 amendments.... Because of this rule, a plaintiff may not compel remand by 7 amending a complaint to eliminate the federal question upon which removal was 8 based.”); accord Wis. Dept. of Corrs. v. Schacht, 524 U.S. 381, 390 (1998) (“for 9 purposes of removal jurisdiction, we are to look at the case as of the time it was filed 10 in state court-prior to the time the defendants filed their answer in federal court”).

11 Here, at the time of removal on May 9th, the Amended Complaint alleged two 12 separate causes of action created by federal statute – the MMWA – and thus 13 jurisdiction properly resides in this Court. (FAC ¶¶ 135, 140.) Houlf has not 14 dismissed those claims. Furthermore, this Court can and should retain jurisdiction of 15 this Action even if Houlf dismisses his MMWA claims because of its similarities to 16 and overlap with the actions already proceeding before this Court in the MDL.

17 C. Federal Question Jurisdiction Clearly Existed
18 Under The MMWA When The Action Was Removed

19 1. Plaintiff Pled Two Federal Claims Under The MMWA

20 The MMWA, a federal statute, provides federal question jurisdiction if a claim 21 is asserted under it. (See Notice of Removal; ECF No. 2647 at 3.) Plaintiff can 22 hardly dispute that the MMWA is a federal statute, and that Plaintiff has sufficiently 23 pled a claim under it.³ Plaintiff knowingly stated claims under federal law and 24 vested this Court with federal question jurisdiction. Thus, removal was proper.

25 _____
26 ³ Plaintiff seeks to recover triple his $37,568.60 purchase price, which satisfies the 27 MMWA’s $50,000 amount-in-controversy requirement. See Romo v. FFG Ins. Co., 28 397 F. Supp. 2d 1237, 1239 (C.D. Cal. 2005); Neville v. W. Recreational Vehicles,
Inc., 2007 WL 4197414, at *1-2 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 21, 2007); Notice of Removal Ex.
A. ¶ 4 & Ex. D at 34.

1 Plaintiff disingenuously argues that he “does not assert any claims under 2 federal law” because he “merely references the Magnuson-Moss Act with regard to 3 damages.” (ECF No. 2647 at 4, 9.) Yet, Plaintiff’s self-serving account is belied by 4 even a cursory review of counts four or five of the FAC, which make clear that 5 Plaintiff alleged two claims under MMWA (even if he now regrets it). (FAC ¶ 135 6 (“As a result of Toyota’s breach of express warranty under California Commercial 7 Code § 2104 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, Chapter 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2301, et 8 seq. . . .”); id. ¶ 140 (“As a result of Toyota’s breach of its implied warranty of 9 merchantability under Commercial Code § 2103 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, 15 10 U.S.C.A. §§ 2308, et seq. . . .”).)

11 Indeed, while Plaintiff purports to base his warranty claims on Sections 2103 12 and 2104 of the California Commercial Code as well (FAC ¶¶ 135, 140), those 13 provisions do not create a cause of action. To the contrary, they merely define 14 certain terms and hardly impose or regulate warranty obligations. In fact, the word 15 “warranty” does not even appear in either section. See Cal. Com. Code §§ 2103 16 (defining, among other things, “buyer” and “seller”), 2104 (defining “merchant”, 17 “financing agency”, and “between merchants”).

18 Thus, it appears that the only claim asserted in the fourth or fifth causes of 19 action arises under the MMWA, i.e., solely a federal claim.

20 2. The Court Is Not Bound By Plaintiff’s Artful Pleading

21 Implicitly conceding his unintentional creation of federal question jurisdiction, 22 Plaintiff readily admits he “intentionally amended his breach of express and implied 23 warranty claims in the FAC” so as to downplay his reliance on the MMWA. (ECF 24 No. 2647 at 9). In fact, all he has done is remove the reference to the MMWA from 25 the claims’ headings. (Compare Notice of Removal Ex. A ¶¶ 19-36 with FAC ¶¶ 26 131-40.) Although Plaintiff’s artful drafting may have been calculated to avoid 27 removal or in anticipation of a motion to remand, his intentions fell short of 28

1 accomplishing his goal because simply re-heading his causes of action in the 2 amended complaint does not eliminate his claims for relief under the MMWA.

3 Federal courts are not bound by artful pleading and are free to look at the 4 substance of the claims that have been pled to assess whether federal question
5 jurisdiction exists. See, e.g., Paige v. Henry J. Kaiser Co., 826 F. 2d 857, 860-61 6 (9th Cir. 1987). Thus, assuming arguendo that Sections 2103 and 2104 of the 7 Commercial Code created a cause of action at all, and despite the fact that Plaintiff
8 artfully chose to plead his claims under the MMWA in causes of action conjoined 9 with his “claims” under inapplicable sections of the California Commercial Code, it 10 is clear that he asserts two independent claims in each cause of action: one under the 11 MMWA and one under Sections 2103 and 2104 of the California Commercial Code 12 (assuming these provisions created a claim). (FAC ¶ 135 (“As a result of Toyota’s 13 breach of express warranty under California Commercial Code § 2104 and the 14 Magnuson-Moss Act, Chapter 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2301, et seq.”); id. ¶ 140 (“As a result 15 of Toyota’s breach of its implied warranty of merchantability under Commercial 16 Code § 2103 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2308, et seq.”).)

17 3. Plaintiff’s Attempts To Strip This Court Of Jurisdiction Fail

18 With studied nonchalance, Plaintiff underscores his own gamesmanship by 19 “expressly request[ing] to strike any references” to the MMWA in the FAC, via the 20 novel method of attaching a purported “Plaintiff’s Notice of Striking References 21 From the First Amended Complaint” to his declaration in support of his ex parte
22 motion. (ECF No. 2647 at 9, ECF No. 2648 Ex. 7.) The unprecedented procedural 23 step of offering to stipulate to strike any so-called “references” to his federal claims 24 does not solve Plaintiff’s problem, however. Having already amended his complaint, 25 the proper (and only) procedure for dismissing his federal claims is to file a motion 26 for leave to amend and obtain leave of this Court. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15; see also 27 Ethridge v. Harbor House Rest., 861 F.2d 1389, 1392 (9th Cir. 1988) (“a plaintiff 28 may not use Rule 41(a)(1)(i) to dismiss, unilaterally, a single claim from a multi-claim complaint”); Martinez v. Shaw, 2008 WL 345885, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 7, 2008) (“Where plaintiff wants to drop certain claims but not to dismiss any defendant, the proper procedure is to amend the complaint.”). Until Plaintiff receives leave to amend, the FAC asserting federal claims is the operative pleading. Ethridge, 861 F.2d at 1392 (“Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a) is the appropriate mechanism [w]here a plaintiff desires to eliminate an issue, or one or more but less than all of several claims, but without dismissing as to any of the defendants.”).

Alternatively, Plaintiff relies – wrongly – on International Union of Operating Engineers v. County of Plumas, 559 F.3d 1041 (9th Cir. 2009), to argue that 1) his FAC “merely references” federal law, and 2) an alternative theory of relief exists for his fourth and fifth causes of action, so federal question jurisdiction is absent. (ECF No. 2647 at 8-9.) Plaintiff misreads International Union, which stands for nothing more than the unremarkable proposition that where “it is not necessary to construe federal law in order to resolve plaintiff’s ... cause of action, that cause of action does not support removal[.]” Phillips v. Int’l Union of Operating Eng’rs, AFL-CIO, 1996 WL 478689, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 7, 1996); see also Campbell v. Aerospace Corp., 123 F.3d 1308, 1315 n.1 (9th Cir. 1997) (where plaintiff “did not allege a specific state or federal theory,” then removal would have been improper because “an alternative state-law theory exists”).

This doctrine is obviously inapposite where, as here, plaintiff’s complaint “expressly states a cause of action and seeks damages under a federal statute.” Hovland v. Gardella, 2006 WL 2662165, at *1 (D. Mont. Sept. 15, 2006); see also Lew v. U.S. Bank Nat. Ass’n, 2011 WL 5368847, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 7, 2011) (even though plaintiff included state law claim as well as TILA claim in title of cause of action, the “claim, squarely based on federal law, suffices to create a federal question for removal purposes”). Indeed, the court in Nat’l Credit Reporting Ass’n, Inc. v. Experian Info. Solutions, Inc., 2004 WL 1888769, at *5 (N.D. Cal. July 21, 2004), rejected a plaintiff’s argument that its “reference to federal antitrust laws was

1 merely an incidental reference which is unnecessary” to its state law claim and 2 denied its motion to remand because the plaintiff “specifically alleged that 3 defendants committed unlawful business practices by violating federal antitrust laws 4 in addition to any state antitrust laws,” noting that “Plaintiff has made a Sherman 5 Act bed and must now lie in it.” Id. at *4-5. Similarly, here Plaintiff alleges claims 6 under the MMWA in addition to his claims under irrelevant sections of the 7 California Commercial Code. Because Plaintiff’s FAC asserts claims under the 8 MMWA and Plaintiff has not yet dismissed those claims, like the plaintiff in 9 National Credit, Plaintiff made an MMWA bed “and must now lie in it.” This Court 10 has jurisdiction here.

11 The handful of other cases relied on by Plaintiff are equally inapposite.
12 Plaintiff acknowledges that he is the master of his complaint and could have avoided 13 federal jurisdiction by exclusively relying on state law. See Caterpillar Inc. v.
14 Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987) (“[T]he plaintiff the master of the claim; he or 15 she may avoid federal jurisdiction by exclusive reliance on state law.”). But he did 16 not avoid federal law; rather, he affirmatively asserted claims solely “under” it.
17 (FAC ¶¶ 135, 140.)

18 Likewise, Plaintiff claims that “[j]urisdiction may not be sustained on a theory 19 that the plaintiff has not advanced,” Merrell Dow Pharms. Inc. v. Thompson, 478 20 U.S. 804, 810 n.6 (1986), but admits that he did advance federal claims here. (ECF 21 No. 2647 at 5, 9.) (Of course, to deny it in the face of his own complaint would rob 22 him of all credibility.) Indeed, his own caselaw dooms his argument: it holds that a 23 suit “arises under” federal law where, as here, “the plaintiff’s statement of his own 24 cause of action shows that it is based upon [federal law].” Vaden v. Discover Bank, 25 556 U.S. 49, 60 (2009); see also Provincial Gov’t of Marinduque v. Placer Dome,
26 Inc., 582 F.3d 1083, 1091 (9th Cir. 2009), cert. denied, 131 S. Ct. 65 (2010) 27 (“federal jurisdiction exists only when a federal question is presented on the face of 28

1 the plaintiff's properly pleaded complaint") (cited by Plaintiff at ECF No. 2647 at 8-2 9). In short, Plaintiff's cases prove that remand should be denied.

3 II. This Court Has Supplemental Jurisdiction Over Plaintiff's Claims

4 Even if Plaintiff managed to comply with procedure and successfully dismiss 5 his federal claims, this Court would still have supplemental jurisdiction over 6 Plaintiff's state law claims.

7 A. Plaintiff's Claims Arise from A Common Nucleus of Operative Fact 8 and Should Be Tried in One Proceeding

9 Federal law provides that "in any civil action of which the district courts have 10 original jurisdiction, the district courts shall have supplemental jurisdiction over all 11 other claims that are so related to claims in the action within such original 12 jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of 13 the United States Constitution." 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a). Thus, a district court's 14 exercise of supplemental jurisdiction over state law claims is appropriate where the 15 nonfederal claims "derive from a common nucleus of operative fact and are such that 16 a plaintiff would ordinarily be expected to try them in one judicial proceeding." Trs.
17 of the Constr. Indus. & Laborers Health & Welfare Trust v. Desert Valley Landscape 18 & Maint., Inc., 333 F.3d 923, 925 (9th Cir. 2003) (reversing district court's refusal to 19 exercise supplemental jurisdiction over state law claims); see also City of Chi., 522 20 U.S. at 164-65 ("[T]his Court has long adhered to principles of pendent and ancillary 21 jurisdiction by which the federal courts' original jurisdiction over federal questions 22 carries with it jurisdiction over state law claims that derive from a common nucleus 23 of operative fact, such that the relationship between the federal claim and the state 24 claim permits the conclusion that the entire action before the court comprises but one 25 constitutional 'case.'"); Savage v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 26 Maricopa Cty., 343 F.3d 1036, 1051 (9th Cir. 2003) (supplemental jurisdiction was 27 proper where "the same facts and circumstances that form the basis for Savage's 28 claims under the ADA and RA support her [state law] claim"); accord Bahrampour v.
Lampert, 356 F.3d 969, 978 (9th Cir. 2004).

1 Here, Plaintiff's federal claims substantially overlap with the state claims in 2 that they are both economic loss cases arising from the same alleged breaches of 3 warranty. (FAC ¶¶ 135, 140.) Indeed, the claims are so intertwined that Plaintiff did 4 not even separately allege the federal claims, instead alleging that TMA's conduct 5 violated both state and federal law for the same reasons. (Id. (alleging damages "[a]s 6 a result of Toyota's breach of express warranty under California Commercial Code 7 § 2104 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, Chapter 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2301, et seq." and 8 "[a]s a result of Toyota's breach of its implied warranty of merchantability under 9 Commercial Code § 2103 and the Magnuson-Moss Act, 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 2308, et 10 seq.")). Thus, this Court has supplemental jurisdiction over the state law claims.

11 B. This Court Can And Should Exercise Supplemental 12 Jurisdiction Over Plaintiff's State Law Claims

13 Having established that this Court has original and supplemental jurisdiction, 14 the Court can and should exercise its discretion to continue to exercise its 15 supplemental jurisdiction over the state law claims. District courts may, but are not 16 required to, decline to exercise jurisdiction over supplemental state-law claims if: 17 "(1) the claim raises a novel or complex issue of State law, (2) the claim 18 substantially predominates over the claim or claims over which the district court has 19 original jurisdiction, (3) the district court has dismissed all claims over which it has 20 original jurisdiction, or (4) in exceptional circumstances, there are other compelling 21 reasons for declining jurisdiction." 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c); see also Watison v. Carter, 22 668 F.3d 1108, 1117-18 (9th Cir. 2012) (explaining that under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c), 23 the court "may, in its discretion, decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction" or 24 "may decide that it should retain supplemental jurisdiction"). Plaintiff does not 25 dispute that this is the standard. (ECF No. 2647 at 10.)

26 In the absence of one of these conditions, a court must retain supplemental 27 jurisdiction. See Exec. Software N. Am., Inc. v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for C.D. Cal., 24 F.3d 28 1545, 1561 (9th Cir. 1994) ("the district court clearly erred by articulating a basis for declining jurisdiction that is unauthorized by statute”), overruled on other grounds by Cal. Dept. of Water Res. v. Powerex Corp., 533 F.3d 1087, 1095-96 (9th Cir. 2008); Lew, 2011 WL 5368847, at *2 (“courts may only decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction” if one of the four conditions in 28 U.S.C. § 1367 is met) (emphasis in original). Even then, remand is discretionary, not mandatory. See Satey v. JPMorgan Chase & Co., 521 F.3d 1087, 1091 (9th Cir. 2008) (“dismissal of the remaining state law claims is not mandatory”). Here, none of these factors favor remand.

1. This Case Does Not Involve Issues That Are Any More Complex Than Those Currently Under Consideration

Plaintiff does not even attempt to argue that this case involves novel issues of state law, but instead insists that it involves “complex issues” under “unique” California statutes, including the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, Unfair Competition Law, and Consumers Legal Remedies Act. (ECF No. 2647 at 10.) Plaintiff simply ignores that this Court frequently handles cases involving such claims. See, e.g., Gray v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc., 2008 WL 5553158, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 22, 2008) (Selna, J.) (California’s Song-Beverly Act and federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act); Yau v. Duetsche Bank Nat’l Trust Co. Ams., 2011 WL 5402393, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 8, 2011) (Selna, J.) (UCL); Justo v. Indymac Bancorp, 2010 WL 623715, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 19, 2010) (CLRA).

In fact, as noted above, Plaintiff’s FAC purports to state causes of action identical to those asserted in the SAELMCC and TAELMCC. (Compare FAC ¶¶ 92-140 with SAELMCC ¶¶ 417-54, 464-89, 502-16, 684-709 and TAELMCC ¶¶ 444-81, 517-31, 693-718 (asserting claims under CLRA, UCL, express and implied warranties under the California UCC, Magnuson-Moss Act, and Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act); accord Plaintiff’s Notice of Related Cases, filed in Houlf v. Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 5.) Thus, this Court is already presiding over these very claims, on substantially the same facts.

1 Indeed, the complexity of this Action makes it more suited, not less suited, to 2 this Court's jurisdiction because hearing it with other nearly identical economic loss 3 cases will preserve judicial resources and avoid inconsistent rulings. See In re
4 Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 2012 WL 1899798, 5 at *3 (S.D. Cal. May 24, 2012) (denying motion to remand because inclusion in 6 MDL proceedings "will preserve judicial and party resources and avoid the chance 7 of inconsistent rulings"); Capoccia v. Boone, 2007 WL 1655348, at *5 (D. Vt. June 5, 8 2007) ("The procedural history of the case, even at this early stage, is complex, and 9 remand to state court would only increase that complexity."); In re Long Distance
10 Telecommc'ns Litig., 598 F. Supp. 951, 954 (E.D. Mich. 1984) ("[T]o permit
11 plaintiff to take his case back to the California state court now would provoke a 12 multitude of state class actions on this very issue, each materially indistinguishable 13 from the consolidated actions now before this court, in innumerable state fora against 14 the same defendants," and "[i]nconsistent rulings and impossibility of compliance 15 would soon follow."); Russell v. BAC Home Loans Serv., LP, 2011 WL 3861526, at 16 *2 (D. Haw. Aug. 10, 2011) ("remanding the state law claims would result in 17 duplicative litigation, would tax judicial resources, would significantly increase 18 litigation costs, and may lead to inconsistent results"). Thus, Plaintiff did not – and 19 cannot – show that the complexity of this case requires remand here.

20 2. The State Law Claims Do Not Substantially 21 Predominate Over Any Federal Claims

22 Plaintiff next offers the conclusory assertion that no MMWA claim is asserted 23 so state law claims substantially predominate over any federal claims. (ECF No.
24 2647 at 10.) But as discussed above, Plaintiff's attempt to dodge removal by 25 downplaying his federal claims does not alter the immutable fact that he seeks relief 26 under a federal statute, and thus his premise is faulty. (Supra at I.C.) Moreover, 27 "[t]he substantially predominate standard ... is not satisfied simply by a numerical 28 count of the state and federal claims the plaintiff has chosen to assert on the basis of

1 the same set of facts.” Borough of W. Mifflin v. Lancaster, 45 F.3d 780, 789 (3d Cir.
2 1995). Where “state causes of action require consideration of similar facts and 3 issues as [the] federal claim, ... state law claims cannot be said to substantially
4 predominate over [the] federal claim.” Bavand v. OneWest Bank FSB, 2012 WL 5 1884668, at *4 (W.D. Wash. May 22, 2012); see also Santiago v. Keyes, __ F. Supp. __, 6 2012 WL 833167, at *4 (D. Mass. Mar. 8, 2012) (denying remand where “the 7 essence of Plaintiff’s case is the violation of his civil rights by all defendants which 8 he alleges occurred under both state and federal law, claims which remain”); Suter v.
9 Univ. of Tex. San Antonio, 2010 WL 4690717, at *2 (W.D. Tex. Nov. 1, 2010) 10 (denying remand where “plaintiff’s EPA claim arises out of the same set of facts as 11 her state-law claims and will involve many of the same witnesses and overlapping 12 evidence,” and “thus so closely connected to and factually intertwined with her state-13 law claims that none of the various causes of action substantially predominates over 14 the others”).

15 Here, it cannot be credibly disputed that this Court will be considering the 16 same evidence, hearing from the same witnesses, and considering virtually identical 17 facts because, as Plaintiff admits, the pending MDL litigation “concerns claims of 18 sudden acceleration against Toyota, and involves substantially similar questions of 19 fact and law as the action herein.” (Plaintiff’s Notice of Related Cases, filed in Houlf 20 v. Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 5.) Thus, it cannot be 21 said that Plaintiff’s state law claims substantially predominate over his federal claims.

Fairness and Comity Favor Retaining Jurisdiction

24 Plaintiff insists that because he has offered to stipulate to strike any reference 25 to the MMWA, any claims on which original jurisdiction are based will no longer 26 exist. (ECF No. 2647 at 10-11.) Plaintiff’s offer to stipulate, which Defendants have 27 not agreed to accept, would not (even if accepted) change the fact that Plaintiff 28 admittedly filed Magnuson-Moss claims, (ECF No. 2647 at 5, 9), or that his current 1 complaint alleges breach of the express and implied warranty “under ... the 2 Magnuson-Moss Act” (FAC ¶¶ 135, 140.) Neither does it change the fact that 3 Plaintiff has taken no effective action to eliminate his federal claims. Thus, 28

4 U.S.C. § 1367(c)(3) is not an appropriate basis upon which to decline to exercise 5 supplemental jurisdiction.

6 Regardless, a court is not required to decline to exercise supplemental 7 jurisdiction upon dismissal of federal claims. “A district court’s decision whether to 8 exercise that jurisdiction after dismissing every claim over which it had original 9 jurisdiction is purely discretionary.” Carlsbad Tech., Inc. v. HIF Bio, Inc., 556 U.S.
10 635, 639 (2009). Courts consider “the circumstances of the particular case, the 11 nature of the state law claims, the character of the governing state law, and the 12 relationship between the state and federal claims.” City of Chi., 522 U.S. at 173.
13 Although “in the usual case” the balance of factors weigh in favor of remand subject 14 to the Court’s discretion, which “depend[s] upon what will best accommodate the 15 values of economy, convenience, fairness, and comity,” Harrell v. 20th Century Ins.
16 Co., 934 F.2d 203, 205 (9th Cir. 1991)⁴ – this is far from the usual case. Here, 17 Plaintiff’s action will proceed to trial in one of two consolidated proceedings – either 18 in the federal MDL together with the nearly identical claims of the Economic Loss 19 Action, or in the JCCP. The balance of factors here strongly favors exercising 20 supplemental jurisdiction over Houlf because the overwhelming similarities to the 21 Economic Loss Action make doing so the most economical choice. The same 22 considerations render federal court the most convenient, fair, and comitous choice.

23 First, judicial economy strongly favors the exercise of supplemental 24 jurisdiction. “Judicial economy has frequently been privileged over the other

3 Inc., 865 F. Supp. 1210, 1216 (E.D. La. 1994) (“this Court refuses to emasculate the 4 spirit of judicial economy”). Among other things, the Court should consider the 5 effort involved in familiarizing itself with the issues of fact and law raised in the 6 Economic Loss Action, and the resources a state court would have to invest in 7 gaining the same understanding. See Hansen v. Cal. Dept. of Corr., 920 F. Supp.
8 1480, 1500 (N.D. Cal. 1996) (“it would be wasteful to force California courts to 9 expend resources on a case which this court can move toward final resolution much 10 more efficiently”); Target Strike, Inc. v. Marston & Marston, Inc., 2011 WL 11 2618609, at *6 (W.D. Tex. June 30, 2011) (“Remanding this case to state court 12 would require a state court judge to reach the district court’s level of familiarity with 13 this case—a level that must be reached without the assistance of law clerks—before 14 resolving pending matters No court is more familiar with this case than the 15 federal district court.”); Hunt Skansie Land, 2010 WL 2650502, at *3 (where federal 16 case had not been pending long, court still found judicial economy favored 17 exercising jurisdiction where the court spent “significant time ... familiarizing itself 18 with the facts of this case,” and state court “would have to invest to gain the 19 understanding of the issues that this Court already has”); Byrd v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 20 2006 WL 2228829, at *2 (D. Ariz. Aug. 1, 2006) (“the Court is quite familiar with 21 the facts of this case and the legal issues involved,” so retaining jurisdiction 22 promotes “conservation of judicial energy and the avoidance of multiplicity of 23 litigation”); Capoccia, 2007 WL 1655348, at *5 (“The procedural history of the case, 24 even at this early stage, is complex, and remand to state court would only increase 25 that complexity.”).⁵

26
27 ⁵ In fact, Plaintiff himself recognizes that this case is properly heard along with the 28 pending MDL actions. (See Plaintiff’s Notice of Related Cases, filed in Houlf v.
Toyota Motor N. Am., 2:12-cv-04054-JVS-FMO, ECF No. 5.) Given the similarity (cont'd)

1 Second, convenience strongly favors exercising supplemental jurisdiction. “It 2 is a tautology that it is more economical and convenient for the parties to conduct 3 pretrial proceedings before one court, in which discovery can be coordinated, and 4 issues common to each case can be resolved in a consolidated fashion.” In re Ford 5 Motor Co. Ignition Switch Prods. Liab. Litig., 19 F. Supp. 2d 263, 270 (D.N.J. 1998).
6 See also W. Va. ex rel. McGraw v. Eli Lilly & Co., 2008 WL 4449655, at *2-3 7 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 30, 2008) (“uniformity in treating claims brought in this multi-8 district litigation matter is desirable” and judge is “well positioned to oversee the 9 remaining discovery, ensuring that there is adequate consistency and fairness through 10 the discovery process”).

11 Indeed, the purpose of allowing a court to retain supplemental jurisdiction is to 12 ensure that one court – rather than several – resolves all claims arising out of a 13 common nucleus of operative facts. See id.; see also Schmidt v. Cty. of Nevada, 14 2011 WL 445836, at *4 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 8, 2011) (purpose of Section 1367 is “to 15 promote economy by ensuring that one forum resolves all claims arising out of a 16 common nucleus of operative facts”); Bavand, 2012 WL 1884668, at *5 (“if the 17 court were to decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction, the result would be two 18 concurrent actions arising from the same sets of facts – one in state court addressing 19 the state law claims and one in this court addressing her [Federal Debt Collection 20 Practices Act] claim,” which is “contrary to the concerns of efficiency, convenience, 21 and fairness underlying supplemental jurisdiction”).

22 Retaining supplemental jurisdiction is also more convenient because it 23 prevents the same issues from being litigated in two separate fora. See Sea-Land 24 Serv., Inc. v. Atl. Pac. Int’l, Inc., 61 F. Supp. 2d 1092, 1101-02 (D. Haw. 1999) litigation, remanding this case would waste, rather than conserve, judicial resources.

1 identical tying claim” anyway); S.C. v. Harper-Hutzel Hosp., 2007 WL 674924, at 2 *7-8 (E.D. Mich. Mar. 1, 2007) (factors “strongly militate[d]” in favor of jurisdiction 3 where the “entirety of this action stems from the same body of essential facts,” the 4 “same evidence will be presented,” the “same expert witnesses will be employed,” 5 and the “[p]reparation by counsel for a single trial ... will clearly be more convenient 6 to the lawyers, and less expensive for the parties”). Here, the identical claims 7 brought in the Economic Loss Action and this case underscore the efficiencies to be 8 gained by having discovery, evidentiary, and other issues heard in the same court.

9 Third, considerations of fairness favor exercising supplemental jurisdiction.
10 Simply put, it would be unfair to remand this case to state court, only to require 11 Defendants to litigate the same issues twice and face the risk of inconsistent rulings.
12 See Ford Motor, 19 F. Supp. 2d at 270 (“It would ... be quite unfair to defendants to 13 scatter these [MDL] cases back to their courts of origin prior to the completion of 14 general common discovery, where the current indications show that defendants are 15 being responsive to all plaintiffs’ reasonable discovery needs in this forum.”); Long 16 Distance Telecommc’ns, 598 F. Supp. at 954 (“to permit plaintiff to take his case 17 back to the California state court now would provoke a multitude of state class 18 actions on this very issue, each materially indistinguishable from the consolidated 19 actions now before this court,” and “[i]nconsistent rulings and impossibility of 20 compliance would soon follow.”).

21 Finally, comity supports retaining jurisdiction, because the identical claims 22 have already been before this federal court for more than a year. See Doddy v. Oxy 23 USA, Inc., 101 F.3d 448, 456 (5th Cir. 1996) (affirming denial of remand where “the 24 Doddys’ remaining causes of action did not raise any novel or unsettled issues of 25 state law; their claims could be readily decided in federal court under established 26 Texas tort principles”); Pantazis v. Fior D’Italia, Inc., 1994 WL 519469, at *3-4 27 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 1994) (court retained jurisdiction where “plaintiff does not assert, 28 nor does the Court find, that any of the claims raises a novel or complex issue of

1 State law”); Braswell Wood Co., Inc. v. Waste Away Grp., 2011 WL 2292311, at *3
2 (M.D. Ala. June 9, 2011) (“Plaintiff’s remaining breach of contract claim is not 3 novel or complex, and this factor militates in favor of an exercise of supplemental 4 jurisdiction.”); Target Strike, 2011 WL 2618609, at *7 (comity favored retaining 5 jurisdiction where state law issues were not complex or novel).

6 As noted above, Plaintiff purports to bring claims under the CLRA, UCL, 7 express and implied warranties under the California UCC, Magnuson-Moss Act, and 8 Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act – all of which are before this Court already.
9 (Compare FAC ¶¶ 92-140 with SAELMCC ¶¶ 417-54, 464-89, 502-16, 684-709 and 10 TAEMLCC ¶¶ 444-81, 517-31, 693-718 (asserting claims under CLRA, UCL, 11 express and implied warranties under the California UCC, Magnuson-Moss Act, and 12 Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act).) It only makes sense for this Court to 13 evaluate Plaintiff’s claims along with the Economic Loss plaintiffs’.

14 For all these reasons, even if Plaintiff succeeds in dismissing his MMWA 15 claim, this Court should retain supplemental jurisdiction.

16 4. This Case Does Not Present “Compelling Reasons”
17 To Decline Supplemental Jurisdiction

18 Plaintiff states, without explanation, that “compelling reasons” exist for 19 declining supplemental jurisdiction because this is a bellwether case “selected by 20 Judge Mohr.” (ECF No. 2647 at 11.) This statement, however, is both factually 21 misleading and legally wrong. Contrary to the implication of Plaintiff’s brief, Judge 22 Mohr did not “cho[o]se” or “select[]” Houlf for bellwether status from among the 23 cases before him in the JCCP. (Id. at 6, 11.) Rather, Judge Mohr ordered the parties 24 in the JCCP to “rank in order of preference their respective proposed bellwether 25 cases” (ECF No. 2648 Ex. 3 at 94.) In response, the JCCP plaintiffs’ 26 committees, which include Houlf’s counsel, chose Houlf as one of four bellwethers 27 (after switching out two proposed bellwethers plaintiffs had identified previously).
28 (Id.) Thus, Houlf’s implication that this Court should defer to Judge Mohr’s “select[ion]” of Houlf is wrong.

Moreover, the JCCP plaintiffs' committees designated Houlf as a proposed bellwether in January 2012 – the same month that Houlf amended his complaint to echo nearly all of the surviving California claims in the SAELMCC, including the federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act. Toyota does not dispute Houlf's right to amend his complaint, or the JCCP plaintiffs' committees' right to designate Houlf as a proposed bellwether action in the JCCP. However, the fact that Houlf's counsel and the rest of the JCCP plaintiffs' committee members selected a bellwether case based on a newly amended complaint that established federal question jurisdiction in no way constitutes a "compelling reason" for this Court to decline jurisdiction. To the contrary, "'compelling reasons' for the purposes of subsection (c)(4) ... should be those that lead a court to conclude that declining jurisdiction 'best accommodate[s] the values of economy, convenience, fairness, and comity.'" Executive Software, 24 F.3d at 1557. Nothing in Plaintiff's tactical gambit in amending Houlf and proposing it for bellwether status supports these values.⁶ As explained above, economy, convenience, fairness, and comity are served by keeping Houlf together with the Economic Loss Action on which it is modeled. In short, no factor exists that would allow the court to decline supplemental jurisdiction.

⁶ While Plaintiff and his counsel may be happy to have their economic loss claims heard in state court before the Economic Loss Action can proceed to trial in the MDL, as explained above, neither Judge Mohr nor other plaintiffs' counsel appear to share that priority. All appear amenable to keeping Uno, a wrongful death action, as the first bellwether, and continuing its trial date until Spring 2013.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny Plaintiff's motion to remand.
